

Homework 4

In addition to our base functionality, we added a feature that determines if the user is on campus or not on campus. In the troubling times of our modern world, there is a lot of uncertainty in our lives. We found that one of these uncertainties afflicting freshmen and tourists is the question of whether you are actually on campus or not on campus. This application uses the geolocation information to definitively answer the age old question of whether you are actually on campus or not on campus. This will help freshmen and tourists avoid confusion when sharing their locations with their friends and help ease their oftentimes daunting time on campus before they gain familiarity with their surroundings. Since this feature can be so pivotal in preventing communication issues, we feel that the additional information is worth the full 5 points.
